WEST LEYTE PENETRATION IS EXTENDED

Veteran 77th Division From Guam Rolls Rapidly North Toward Enemy's Reinforcements

19 SHIPS ARE SUNK

By C. YATES McDaniel

General MacArthur's Headquarters, Philippines, Dec. 8.—(AP)—The 77th Division Yanks from Guam are dashing ashore by the navy to the rear of more than 25,000 trapped Japanese, rolled rapidly north today toward the enemy's west Leyte reinforcement port of Ormoc, less than three miles away.

The surprise landing Thursday in Ormoc harbor, under the guns of Seventh Fleet destroyers and swarms of fighter planes, cut in half the heavily defended Yamashita defense line.

Coming on the third anniversary of Pearl Harbor, the Ormoc attack was a bloody and grim reminder to the Japanese that American arms have grown powerful and lethal since that way which plunged the United States into war.

This bold penetration of the Philippines inland seas to West Leyte, made while Yanks on East Leyte were hunting down and killing the bulk of 200 Japanese paratroopers bent on sabotage, caught the Japanese strategists unawares. At the hour of landing a 13-ship enemy reinforcement convoy bound for Ormoc was spotted and it was wiped out, together with the 4,000 troops and equipment aboard, during the day by fighter planes.

The Leyte campaign, stalemated for more than a month by storms and Japanese reinforcements after swift conquest of its eastern side, soared into high gear on the third anniversary of Pearl Harbor Day.

In all, 19 enemy ships, including seven destroyers, were sunk Thursday off Leyte in troop-carrying operations, while planes elsewhere in the Philippines areas blasted nine large vessels.

Sixty-two Japanese planes were shot down over and around Leyte at a cost of five U. S. planes whose pilots were rescued.

Army Maj. Richard I. Bong, of Poplar Bluffs, Wis., celebrating his award of the Congressional Medal of Honor, bagged two to run his score as America's leading war ace in all theatres to 38.

The bulk of 200 Japanese parachute troops, dropped Wednesday night behind the Yank lines on East Leyte to sabotage air bases near San Pablo, 19 miles southwest of Tacloban, were killed in a day-light hunt.

An even larger Japanese force is menaced by possible loss of its backdoor to the 77th, even as it carries on a 49-day-old ridge fight to hold the rugged corridor north of Ormoc against U. S. 32nd Division troops inching south from captured Limon. The 32nd, moving down from Carigaba Bay, is roughly 20 miles from Ormoc.

Bridgehead Over Lamone Widened

By NOLAN ORGAARD

Rome, Dec. 8.—(AP)—British and Polish troops driving on through rain, fog and mud, continued to enlarge their bridgehead over the Lamone river, southwest of Faenza today and captured Castel Raniero, Olatello and Pideura.

Simultaneously, the Allied command disclosed that the first Canadian corps, commanded by Lt. Gen. Charles Foulkes, is in action on the Eighth Army front and scored the breakthrough in heavy fighting between the Lamone and Tevere rivers which resulted in the fall of Ravenna.

Screened by a morning fog which limited visibility to 100 yards, Allied troops enlarged the bridgehead southwest of Faenza to a depth of more than two miles with the capture of Castel Raniero, three miles from Faenza. Pideura is a mile and a half farther southwest and Olatello is less than a mile south of Castel Raniero.

Bong Leading American and British Air Aces of War

By the Associated Press

Maj. Richard I. Bong, of Poplar Bluffs, Wis., now ranks first among all British and American air aces of World War II, but the Russians claim title to the ace of aces of his war.

Bong, who knocked down his 7th and 38th Japanese planes in a fierce battle over Leyte in the Philippines, also outdistanced the leading RAF contender, Wing Commander E. (Johnny) Johnson, an Englishman commanding a Canadian Spitfire squadron in the European theatre, who has 35 official kills in the air to his credit.

The Russians claim 58 enemy planes shot down in combat by their ace, Lt. Col. G. G. Gribovsky, 31, as

Third Ukraine Army Driving On Budapest

By DANIEL DE LUCE

Moscow, Dec. 8.—(AP)—The heavily armored right wing of the Russian Third Ukraine army was reported little more than 15 miles from Budapest today in the fierce Hungarian drive to cut off the Hungarian capital from Austrian communications.

Field dispatches said the forces of Marshal Fedor I. Tolbukhin were pounding a big wedge in the enemy's flank west of the Danube, but resistance by the Nazis, reinforced by troops rushed from Vienna, increased as the battle surged toward Budapest.

Szekesfehervar, junction of six rail lines 36 miles southwest of Budapest, was temporarily bypassed by the Russians in their accelerated drive up the Danube's bank.

The Soviet supreme command was still silent on what operations Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's Second Ukraine army may be undertaking to seal off Budapest from the northeast, but he and Tolbukhin appeared certain to coordinate closely their assaults to complete investment of Hungary's greatest city.

Taking prisoners at the rate of 2,000 a day Tolbukhin also widened his grip along the Drava river within 70 miles of the Croatian capital of Zagreb, through which German divisions in the Balkans (Turn to Page Fifteen)

SANTA BAWLED OUT

Williamsport, Dec. 8.—(AP)—The six-year-old twins, Bobbie and Jackie White of Montoursville, don't like the way some people talk to Santa Claus. They overheard a man telling the bearded gentleman on a Williamsport street that he was two minutes late on the job and reminding him he was "allowed only three quarters of an hour for dinner."

Quake Damage Is Admitted by Tokyo

By the Associated Press

Radio Tokyo admitted today that the earthquake yesterday caused a tidal wave which covered houses with water, started a landslide and damaged buildings.

After almost a day of denials of major damage, the Japanese news agency Domei admitted that Tokyo was shaken and that a tidal wave inundated houses.

The Domei dispatch, intercepted by the Federal Communications Commission, said:

"The seismic center of the earthquake which hit the Tokyo district yesterday afternoon was in the Sea of Enshu."

"The districts affected by the earthquake include Hamamatsu, Shizuoka, Nagano and their vicinity, where some damage was caused to dwellings

Third Army Long Toms and Howitzers Rip to Pieces Capital of Saar Three Miles Away

EXPANDING CROSSINGS

By JAMES M. LONG

Paris, Dec. 8.—(AP)—Lt. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., hammered home his attack today a mile and a half into the Siegfried Line and eight miles deep in Germany's Saar valley while his Third Army long toms and howitzers ripped to pieces its capital of Saarbrücken from three miles or so away.

The campaign was a month old today and already had invalidated the rich coal region which supplies the German army with ten per cent of its iron and steel.

Infantry broadened their foothold across the Saar, merging three original crossings into two strong bridgeheads at Saarlautern and Dillingen along a stretch where the whole east bank is built solidly with one little war industry steel town after another. A cavalry squadron extended its lines inside Forbach (11,500), French rail town 3½ miles southwest of Saarbrücken.

Back in the heavily wooded hills behind the factory towns which the American assault has turned into battlegrounds are the great collieries and coke ovens, whose 16,500,000 tons annual output have been forging the metal for much of Hitler's fighting machine.

The doughfetter penetrated into the Pachtent Buchwald, woods northwest of Saarlautern, after cutting the railroad to Merzig in penetration of the stout Siegfried Line. The drive appeared to be gaining momentum.

Saarbrücken, Saar capital of 135,000, was suffering the fate of the ghost city of Aachen. For the ninth consecutive day, Third Army 105s and 115s deluged its forests of factory chimneys with high explosives.

As the Third thrust tightened its fighting ring, the U. S. Seventh army driving north in France on a 35-mile front west of the Rhine advanced last night to Enchenberg, seven miles south of the Saar border. At this point, the Seventh was about four and one-half miles west and slightly south of the Maginot Line's fortress town of Bitch.

The Third Army assault was biting into the French city of Forbach, three and one-half miles southwest of Saarbrücken. The Fifth Division also cracked into Furstenhausen, four and one-half miles west, and other forces entered Grand Roselle, six miles southwest.

Northwest of the Saarbrücken battle, the Third Army welded its Saarlautern bridgehead solidly to another on the south over the Saar river. Fighting continued in the eastern outskirts of Saarlautern.

A third crossing less than three miles above Saarlautern was extended across the railway leading north to the fortress of Merzig.

PENN'A WAR PLANTS NEED 11,600 WORKERS

Harrisburg, Dec. 8.—(AP)—The War Manpower Commission today is seeking 11,600 workers urgently needed in 59 Pennsylvania war plants producing vital war munitions and equipment.

Describing these plants as "super-critical" to the war effort, Aflorin J. Boland, state WMC director, said yesterday that 10 of them are located in the Philadelphia area, 12 in Pittsburgh, nine in Lancaster, seven in Greensburg, five in Williamsport, four in Scranton, four in Erie, three in Reading, three in Allentown and two in Altoona.

Senate Ready To Decide On Tax Freezing

Washington, Dec. 8.—(AP)—The senate poised for a decision today on bills freezing the social security payroll tax and extending the president's extraordinary war powers.

The bills, among this session's most important, have passed the house and come before the senate without change. Approval of the war powers extension by both the senate and the president is taken for granted. The payroll tax is a different matter.

Many lawmakers expect Mr. Roosevelt to veto the freeze bill if the senate follows the lead of the house, where it passed by a vote of 282 to 72. A two-thirds majority of both houses is necessary to override a veto.

The 1937 social security law called for an automatic doubling Jan. 1, 1942 of the one per cent payroll tax on employers and employees. Three times congress has blocked the rise on the ground the social security reserve fund is ample.

County Reaches 44 Per Cent In Sixth War Loan Sales

Warren County's hundreds of loyal volunteer War Bond workers were commended today for the hard work they are doing in the face of many difficulties, by Donald C. Smith, chairman of the county's Sixth War Loan drive, as he announced the latest Federal Reserve Bank figures showed Warren County for the first 12 days of the drive was nearing the high goal set for it in the Sixth War Loan, but was standing in 14th place of the 19 counties included in the Fort Pitt area.

With an over-all county quota of $3,050,000, the Federal Reserve report of Bonds issued through December 2nd, shows total sales of $2,327,000, or approximately 44%. This figure does not include the heavy purchasing of the last few days, nor does it count Bonds sold but not yet paid for, a considerable number of which are awaiting purchaser's calls at the banks and other issuing agencies. Of the amount actually paid for and thus credited to the county, corporation purchases amounted for $872,000 and individual purchases $445,000.

Greatly concerned by the fact that the county's important "E" bonds would be required by all workers of a creditable showing is to be made in this vital classification, he revealed that plans were under way to concentrate on this task for the remainder of the drive.

Reports just in from industrial plants and schools in both Warren and the county indicate that sterling work is being done to boost "E" bonds by both of these important (Turn to Page Fifteen)

Man Runs Amok And Slays Four

New Brunswick, N. J., Dec. 8.—(AP)—New Brunswick police said they were holding for questioning today a 24-year-old laborer who ran amok, killed four persons, wounded two others and possessed a posse of 300 for six hours before surrendering late last night.

Police Chief Henry Harrington of Carteret said the young man, Daniel Molnar, a Carteret resident, shot and killed his father-in-law, a 14-year-old girl bystander and two members of Carteret police, wounded two other policemen.

The shooting began, Harrington said, when Molnar visited his estranged wife at the Carteret home of her father, Adam Rozanski, 62, where, Mrs. Molnar said, he attempted to shoot her with a 22 calibre rifle and then shot her father, after asking about his three-year-old daughter.

PLANES AND SHIPS ATTACK BONIN ISLANDS

Likely Takeoff Point for Ten Nippon Bombers in Raid On Saipan Blasted by U. S. Forces

A 750 - MILE FLIGHT

Washington, Dec. 8.—(AP)—A sizeable task force of B-29's dropped a "record load of bombs" on Iwo Jima, in the Japanese Bonin Islands yesterday.

The strike was in coordination with attacks by navy surface ships and other aircraft in an obvious effort to neutralize the airfields in the Volcano Islands from which the Japanese have launched raids on Saipan.

The Japanese base is 750 miles north of the Superfortress base at Saipan.

Informally, the 20th Air Force announced explained that the "record load of bombs" meant that it was the biggest tonnage per plane dropped so far by any B-29 on any raid.

Bombing was done through heavy clouds without interference from either Japanese fighters or anti-aircraft, it was announced.

Saipan, Marianas Islands, Dec. 8.—(AP)—Giant Saipan-based Superfortresses put Japan's Bonin Islands on their bombing schedule today with a raid on Iwo Jima, likely takeoff point for ten Nippon bombers which hit the B-29 base here Wednesday.

The B-29s flew 750 miles to raid Iwo Jima, a frequent target for strikes by U. S. Liberators.

One Superfortress was destroyed and two others damaged in the Wednesday raid by twin-engined Mitsubishi's which dropped a few bombs on Saipan and then swept low in strafing runs.

One American was killed, another seriously wounded and several were hurt slightly in this heaviest attack yet on Saipan.

Some Superfortresses alighted back from the fifth and sixth raids on the Japanese capital Thursday night and early Friday morning told of finding Tokyo so brilliantly lit that it was just like flying over New York.

(China-based Superforts of the 20th Air Force fighting their way into Manchuria yesterday bombed an aircraft plant at Mukden as well as other targets and shot down a record bag of 63 enemy interceptors.)

MILK PRODUCERS URGE A BOOST IN PRICES

Williamsport, Dec. 8.—(AP)—A plea for an increase in milk product prices was heard by the State Milk Control Commission yesterday at the first of a series of hearings to be held by the commission throughout the various marketing areas of Pennsylvania.

The plea was presented by a group of Lycoming county farmers in Williamsport.

Protests against an increase were voiced by some consumers, principally delegations from CIO unions.

The next in the series of hearings will be held at Meadville on Tuesday, Dec. 12 consider problems arising in the northwestern milk marketing area.

Expenditures In Campaign Over Million

Harrisburg, Dec. 8.—(AP)—Financial statements filed with the State Election Bureau show more than $1,500,000 was spent by the state Republican organization and the Democratic party in the presidential election campaign in Pennsylvania.

The report, filed yesterday, lists the disbursements:

Republican finance committee—$934,698.

Republican state committee—$519,846, in addition to payment of a $25,000 loan to state chairman M. Harvey Taylor.

Democratic committee—$131,563.

Total contributions were recorded, as follows:

Republican finance committee—$1,248,346.

GOP state committee—$516,563, including $34,557 from the Republican finance committee and $42,000 from the latter's Allegheny county unit.

Democratic committee—$134,707.

Largest individual contribution to the Republican state committee was $11,000 by Thurston Wright, who was not identified further.

Cigaret Shortage Probed By Senators

Washington, Dec. 8.—(AP)—Senators investigating the cigarette shortage sought today to determine the feasibility of increasing production and of rationing available stocks.

The preliminary investigation indicates that while troops overseas have suffered along with their folks back home, Chairman Mead (D-NY) reported, adequate supplies have been earmarked for them.

Difficulties in shipping, unloading and delivery, which have kept smokers from reaching the front lines are being ironed out by the war department, Mead said.

Cities Want Share of Pa. Gasoline Tax

Harrisburg, Dec. 8.—(AP)—Failure of cities to receive a share of the state gasoline tax for street construction today was called "taxation without representation" by Henry K. Buman, Allentown director of streets and public improvements.

Buman spoke before some 250 municipal officials at the annual convention of the League of Third Class Cities which also heard Governor Martin call for "clearly defined" sources of taxation for federal, state and local governments to prevent confusion.

"The gasoline tax question," Buman said, "has been kicked around by both Democratic and Republican administrations for the last ten years. Cities are paying the bulk of the tax and they must be recognized in its distribution."

The governor said in a prepared address before the convention that the three levels of government have "encroached on the taxing prerogatives of the other," and added:

"If the time could come when each level of government could have its own tax sources and would then keep within that limitation it would be better for all forms of government concerned."

Real estate, Martin continued, "is unduly burdened" by taxes and in many communities such levels "are making it undesirable for people to own their own homes."

Turning to postwar plans, Martin said projects planned should be tested on the grounds of advantage to the community. Demands on government "will double and redouble" in postwar years, he asserted and cautioned:

"Memorials should be beautiful, but they should also be useful when that is possible, they should make our communities better places in which to live."

Confidence Vote For King Decisive

Ottawa, Dec. 8.—(AP)—The Canadian parliament gave Prime Minister W. L. MacKenzie King a decisive vote of confidence today in a move endorsing his decision to conscript troops for replacements in Europe and apparently burying the nation-splitting conscription issue for the duration of the war.

The vote was 143 to 70, with nationalist French Canada, traditionally opposed to conscription for fighting overseas, voting to give the government a measure of support regarded as a personal triumph for the veteran prime minister.

Parliament's vote, in particular, was approval of King's decision to conscript from Canada's home army an initial 16,000 men for service on the western front and in Italy.

SNOWFALL IS GENERAL

Harrisburg, Dec. 8.—(AP)—District reports to the state highway department today showed a snow fall of one-quarter to three inches in north, central, south central and southwest sections of Pennsylvania with the greatest depth falling at Lock Haven and Clearfield.

Los Angeles Trial Called Craziest Comedy of 1944

By FRANK FRAWLEY

Los Angeles, Dec. 8.—(AP)—Too bad the Tommy Dorsey felonious assault trial isn't eligible for the Motion Picture Academy "Oscar" as the craziest comedy of 1944.

It would win in a walk.

Of all the Hollywood hippodromes, this was the daftiest.

Superior Judge Arthur Crum yesterday dismissed charges that Music Maestro Dorsey, his electric brunet wife, Pat Dane, and their neighbor Allen Smiley, pummeled the daylight's out of big Jon Hall, who specializes in making movie love to South Sea island native girls.

The court said it simply couldn't reconcile all the conflicting and confused mass of testimony. It branded Antonio Icaza, sleek-haired Panamanian actor and chief prosecution witness, as a "fabulous, masterful fabricator of falsehoods," a "perjurer pure and simple."

This morning's mail brought a batch of big chuckles from beneath the matted whiskers of old Alias Santa Claus and as letter after letter was opened he laid out a nice assortment of checks. Other checks in the mails were from Mrs. Jane Jorgenson $5; Mary W. Nelson, $2; Hallie V. Groves, $2 and Manley Overturf $2.

Music Boosters Buy Bonds At Meeting Held Thursday

School Music Boosters Club members, holding their December meeting in the Beatty school auditorium last evening, were reminded by Harry A. Summers of the annual carol festival to be given by the school music department on Friday evening, December 15.

The meeting, conducted by Vice President Creed Erickson in the absence of President Basil White, was a very brief one. Routine reports were read by Mrs. White in the absence of the secretary, Mrs. William Fuelhart, and members voted to purchase another $200 War Bond from its treasury.

The program for the evening was presented by Miss Twila Hoover, director of school vocal music, and a group of her young students. Opening the program was a solo, "Jesu Bambino", sung by Lillian Ristau. A period was then devoted to group carol singing by the audience, Miss Hoover directing and Mr. Summers at the piano.

Miss Hoover then presented a mixed octet, comprising of Wayne Furman, Jr., Joan Finley, Gail Nelson, Calvin Olson, Joan McDonald, Ann Livingstone, Blaine Lauffer and Elwyn Babcock, in a group of selections. Their numbers were "Swanee River", "Kye Song of Sweet St. Bride", "Deck the Halls", "Angels We Have Heard on High", "Silent Night" and "Now the Day Is Over". With only about a month's rehearsal and preparation, since its formation, the group gave evidence of the fine work Miss Hoover is doing with students of her department and was well received by the audience.

Concluding, refreshments were served in the school cafeteria.

DIFFICULT JOB AFTER PEACE

There is much food for thought, and a genuine demand for action, in the following letter written by a Warren service man in France on November 10, the eve of Armistice Day of World War I:

"I wrote a long letter to Sis this afternoon in which I recalled that night twenty-six years ago tomorrow when a group, or more correctly a mob, of kids from our neighborhood, influenced by the excitement of the Armistice celebration and with the unreasonableness of a mob, crashed the gate at a subway station (those were the days before turnstiles), led the ticket taker a merry chase down and 'up' escalator, across the street, up a stairway that led to the station platform, and were so far ahead by the time we got there that we were able to board a train and take off unhindered. We were twelve or more in number, who merely added to the noise, confusion and general disorder of people who were cheering a victory we had won. None of them realized, any more than the crazy ten year olds in my mob, that the war hadn't been won, it was only the fighting that had stopped.

"People, who are more your contemporaries than mine, would say 'leave us not make' the same mistake again. Perhaps you are as tired of hearing me preach that dictum as you are of hearing me talk about the rain. I hope not, because as the war draws nearer its end, I'm going to shout it more and more frequently. The need for education, tolerance, mutual understanding, cannot be stressed too strongly. The cost of education, would, I'm sure, be far less than the cost of policing, although both will be necessary for some time. Policing without education would avail us nothing. There is an editorial in today's Stars and Stripes which speaks of the little man, The man on the street in Germany. He is the man, and his children are the children, we will have to teach. We will also have to prove that democracy and tolerance are not merely words that sound pretty in political speeches. We'll have to prove that they work and that we have and use them in the United States. Do you think that we can educate our masses to be tolerant of all creeds, of all colors, in short, of all people? It will be a hard job, but not as hard as educating the people of Germany and, later Japan, that it is not weakness to be kind and helpful and understanding. That the concept of democracy and Christianity are closely allied and are a good way of life."

Under Secretary of War Patterson's statement that the fighting on the western front "we are suffering severe casualties and are facing the grim prospect of more to come" is an uncomfortable reminder that we still have before us what's likely to be the toughest engagement of the war—the Battle of Cologne Plain. It also suggests the importance of putting over the Sixth War Loan drive which, according to an article in another column appears to be seriously lagging in the country.

"Out Town" as presented at the Woman's Club last evening by the Warren Players as a "studio" production is acclaimed as one of the most outstanding yet attempted by this capable group of thespians. Interested friends may secure tickets at the door for the repeat performance tonight.

Christmas shoppers who have been delaying that important task will be surprised to learn that choice assortments are already pretty well picked over so far as Warren stores are concerned. In other words, so far as selections are concerned, you may find that it is far too late to shop early.

General Eisenhower has ordered a probe of illegal sales of cigarettes in the European theatre. Lot of Warren folks are still probing for any old sales.

It's Christmas shopping season—when the book with the most unhappy ending will be dad's check book.

Keep Faith: Today read John 15; Saturday, Psalm 37; Sunday, Isaiah 55.

There is always a long list of weddings during the holiday season. Best wishes to the yulebrides!

Among the Casualties

Stamp News

CHINA'S refugees, driven from their homes as war has swept over their land, benefit from a six-value charity stamp just issued by the Chungking government. Appropriately, the stamps picture a peasant family in flight from their home.

The stamps also vividly illustrate China's inflation, for each stamp has been surcharged with a new and much higher value to keep pace with China's rising prices. Each stamp carries an original surtax to its postal value plus an equal surcharge. Thus the values as finally issued are: $2 plus $2 on 50 cents plus 50-c blue; $4 plus $4 on 8-c plus 8-c; $5 plus $5 on 21-c plus 21-c; $6 plus $6 on 28-c plus 28-c; $10 plus $10 on 33-c plus 33-c, and $20 plus $20 on $1 plus $1.

COLLECTORS are eagerly awaiting word from the Post Office Department at Washington regarding the Red Cross-Blood Plasma stamp, which Postmaster General Walker announced some weeks ago was planned. Latest word from the postal authorities was that a design for the stamp was still under consideration. Paul S. Hedrick, stamp editor of the Tulsa Daily World, suggests that at least 30 days' notice should be given cover collectors so that desirable cachets can be prepared. The forthcoming stamp would place this country alongside other American nations which have honored the Red Cross this year, among them Nicaragua which has issued three such commemorative stamps. The one cordoba value of Nicaragua's set is pictured above.

FIRST day sales of the three-cent motion picture commemorative totaled 1,827,565 stamps with a total value of $54,826.95 at New York and the Hollywood post office in Los Angeles, the Post Office Department reports. A total of 367,133 first day covers were cancelled.

OUR ARMIES ROLL ON PAPER

By GAULT MacGOWAN

Famous War Correspondent

There are pictures one remembers after five years of covering this war. And oddly enough, many of the memorable scenes feature paper in one way or another. Take for instance, the immortal evacuation of the British troops from the bloody beach at Dunkirk.

As soon as the boys were aboard rescuing ships the medical and food cartons were broken open. Wounds were bandaged and hungry men fed. And those boxes were made of waste paper.

There are the dressing stations not far behind the lines in North Africa, the men lying in ordered rows, the lights dim because of constant air straf-

ing. Orderlies were opening the boxes of plasma and bandages... passing them with sure, steady hands to the doctors, working on tirelessly hour after hour. And those containers were all made of waste paper.

In fact, there is hardly a military or naval action in which paper does not figure in some form. I have seen the huge piles of maps back at G.H.Q. before the start of a big offensive. And I have seen those same maps later in the hands of platoon leaders, getting ready to rush an enemy machine gun outpost and planning how to do it most easily, with least loss of life. Those maps were made of waste paper you collected.

I have seen vast flights of bombers preparing to take off through the English twilight for fatality German targets. As each bomb goes into the bay, the protective bands are removed—the bands that kept the missiles smooth and unscathed, so that they might seek out their objectives straight and true. And those bomb bands were made of waste paper.

Until I was captured by the Germans near Chartres, I had never realized how careful the Germans are on matters of salvage, and how many war items they have been able to make out of paper. Literally nothing is thrown away either by the German Army or by the home front. Germany has practiced all kinds of salvage for many years, hence saving paper is second nature with them. While I was a prisoner, the most thrilling experiences we had were when we received our boxes from the Red Cross. Without these we should literally have starved. And each was made from waste paper some devoted soul had banded and tied and put out on the curb for collection.

I think I can say that if all paper products were to be removed from the war zone by some sudden trick of magic, our armies could not fight on for more than a few hours. Orders could not be dispatched; reports could not be made. Supplies could not be transported; they would be battered and broken en route. Without paper for food, medicines and munitions, the offensive would grind to a halt.

This is the challenge to every American. I come back to find that waste paper is the Number 1 war material shortage. But the Germans need paper as badly as we do. You are saving waste paper against some German. He is determined to do a better job than you do. Don't let him do it!

Interesting Items Taken From The Warren Evening Times

Dr. F. G. Schuler was the winner of the Times-Mirror crossword puzzle contest. He had his entry into the paper office less than three hours after the puzzle was announced.

Forty-four Warren county teachers are planning to attend the annual convention of the Pennsylvania State Educational Association which meets in Erie. The three-day program will include addresses by several prominent educators.

After months of preparation, the board of directors for the Warren County Community Chest has been chosen. For a number of years there has been a great demand for a better way of raising and distributing charity and welfare funds, therefore the Community Chest has been formed.

Over 800 tickets have been sold for the annual Policemen's Ball to be held at the Armory. Indications are that the coppers' party will surpass any event of a similar nature to be held in Warren. The Culver-Jordan Orchestra has been engaged to furnish the music.

"The Parade of the Wooden Soldiers" aptly describes the clever design now being exhibited at the Printz store. Over 40 of the soldiers make up the display, which reads "Merry Christmas and Happy New Year." The soldiers were made by Frederic Printz.

A new and larger "Treasure Aisle" has opened the holiday season at the Metzger-Wright Company store. This Christmas it is opening on the fourth floor of the company's building and gifts may be purchased anywhere from fifteen cents up.

Definite plans for a Leadership Training School were announced by the Warren County Ministerial Association. The course will continue for six weeks and the dean will be Rev. Harold McCurdy. Sessions will be held in the Grace Methodist church.

Mighty members attended the North Warren Civic Club welfare banquet at the North Warren Presbyterian church. R. W. Reynolds was the guest speaker and Monty McClure led the group in singing.

READING & WRITING

BY Edwin Scaer and Robin McKim

Certainly one of the most talked about novels of the season is Kathleen Winsor's romantic story of Restoration England, "Forever Amber." "Forever Amber" has all the ingredients of a popular success—a picturesque background, adventure and intrigue, and a beautiful and unscrupulous heroine, the foster-daughter of lowly farmer folks, who comes to occupy a high place in the court of King Charles II.

[The story has a moral too, Amber St. Clare, with all her scheming, loses out in the end, when she meets her match in the man she loves.]

Kathleen Winsor, the attractive author of "Forever Amber," is only twenty-three. She became interested in the Restoration while attending the University of California. Her husband, also a student, was doing a paper on the death of Charles II, and she happened to pick up one of the books he had brought home. After that she read everything she could on the subject—some 400 titles.

When her publishers received the 1400-page manuscript, they offered her $5,000 advance. She's said to have thought that a typographical error. She expected $50,000. Likewise, she didn't submit her book to MGM's novel contest, because it offered the winner a mere $125,000 for the picture rights. Now she has sold her book to Twentieth Century-Fox for $200,000.

In the "life with father" tradition is Rosemary Taylor's "Riddle the Rainbow," about Tucson, a generation ago. Her father was a wonderful salesman, she tells us. One of his innumerable ventures was selling coffee. Once the local Indians started to switch from Arbuckle's coffee (his brand) to Lion's, because the picture of the lion on the package convinced them the coffee would give them strength. Father pointed out to them that Arbuckle's brand had a picture of an angel on its package, and that one angel was stronger than 4,000 lions. The Indians switched right back.

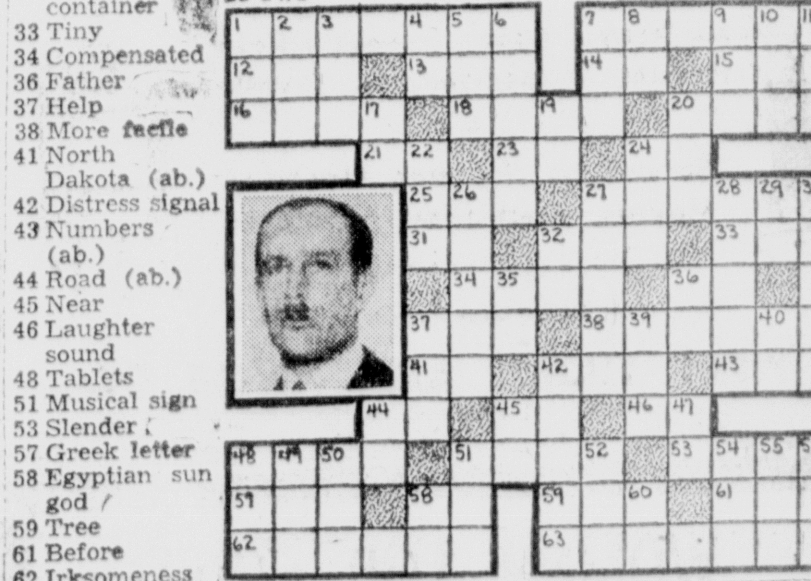

In "Your Kids and Mine," a book about his overseas entertainment tour, Joe E. Brown relates one of his most flattering experiences. He was introduced to General MacArthur, only to discover that the General had arranged for a picture of them both to be taken. What an honor, he thought. But the General said, "My youngster wants this, Joe E. Wants his dad's picture with a celebrity."

Hanging of Greens Ceremony Will Be Of Much Interest

The "Hanging of the Greens" ceremony, an annual program which is sponsored by and takes place at the YWCA, is scheduled for the evening of Monday, December 11, at 7:30.

Preparations for the event are progressing rapidly. During the past week the Girl Reserve department, to which the main responsibility has been given this season, has been busy with card practices, the making of decorations, and the studying of parts for the ceremony itself.

The Junior-Senior group, under the advisement of Miss Margery Lloyd, and the chairmanship of Elvia Lowe, have taken the overall planning in hand. In turn they have asked each separate club to participate actively in a definite way.

Link Committee contributed one bi-weekly discussion meeting to the making of tree decorations.

Both the Beatty and Freshman clubs spent their respective meeting periods with scissors, paste and paper, and their results will also be used as Christmas tree adornments. Girls from these two groups will take active part in the ceremony. Beatty girls as wreath-bearers, and Freshman girls to present the idea of Christmas in other lands.

Miss Twila Hoover is rehearsing the Sophomore Girls' Club for its contribution of carols throughout the evening.

The lighting of candles will be enacted by twelve High School Girls' Club members, and Eleanor Peters, president of this club, will present the main theme of the ceremony.

The evening promises to be a merry one, with all those present helping to decorate the rooms and the trees with greenery and "the Christmas Spirit". The Y. W. C. A. extends a cordial invitation to all its members to attend the "Hanging of the Greens."

Stray Leaves From Notebook Of Reporter About Town

Gosh it's fun to stand around and listen to the woes of the deer hunters who have been out lugging a heavy gun through the woods only to return with no deer. One guy was a philosopher and he said "I just enjoyed being out in the woods even if I didn't get a deer. I love the woodland and have a good time getting out." And then he went on to tell how he had invaded the Hatch Run district and had plowed through a world of territory where chemical wood had been out and where the second growth was more than head high and where briars composed a lot of the growth. "I went through there and the place was alive with deer tracks. Big ones and little ones, all sizes. But do you think I saw a deer? Nary a one but I could hear them all around me and sometimes I felt that they were having a good laugh. It would be a great place for hunters to go and organize a drive and bring the deer out into the open where a fellow could get a shot." And another hunter related that he got into a place near Wetmore where there is a heavy stand of sycamores. There were deer aplenty and they ducked around among the trees so fast that not a shot could be taken.

Sam Hanson whose farm lies right in the heart of the deer territory gives out with a story about the deer coming down and playing around his barn and eating off his hay stacks. Every morning the place is full of tracks but during the day the animals get out of sight and only after sundown do they come down. Sam has a big hunting knife all sharpened up to skin his deer but as yet the animals are too smart and stay in hiding until after the hunting hours are closed.

From the window beside the typewriter where this screed is one fingered onto paper a glimpse is seen every once in a while of someone lugging a match of duds into a dry cleaners. The duds are usually all wadded up under an arm. The parade in and out of the cleaners goes on all the time and when a fellow thinks of all the dry cleaning establishments in town he begins to wonder what in heck the folks did back a score or so of years ago. At that time there were no dry cleaning places in town. A couple of places had agencies for dry cleaners and the clothes were shipped to some city when a plate of soup was spilled on a dress or on the best pair of pop's pants.

There were places, of course, where pressing was done. Where spots were sponged off and where buttons were sewed on and efforts made to rejuvenize a suit that had developed from a blue serge into a mirror. Andy Johnson had such a place and he enjoyed a good business for many years. And the Covert boys Ben and Ivan, remember them? and Lohnes and Jensen? They all had pressing machines and were well patronized by the sports about town. However the women, "God Bless 'em" as Joe Sibley used to say didn't go in for that sort of thing. The pressing was confined to men's suits and the knife like crease was desirable then as now.

But advertising has sold the dry cleaning system to the public and now Pa, Ma and all the family get their duddies dry cleaned and pressed and do we look any prettier than we did years ago?

Talking with a soldier boy home on furlough the other day and after he had told how he liked the Army, how he had seen a bit of service and of how he wanted to get back home the question came up of uniforms. "You know" said this youth, "the thing I miss most in the Army is a necktie of some other color than khaki. I get so sick of tying that tie that I could go AWOL. Boy I sure would like to get on a good polka dot, or a red tie or even one of those pale-yellow effects that look like a scrambled egg. But wouldn't it make a heck of a looking army if the boys all turned out with brilliant neckties? Guess maybe they have something there but on leave they just ought to let us wear some other ties."

Up at Ray Bimber's news stand and headquarters of male village gossip the new Varga Girl calendars have arrived. The Varga girls you remember with their wonderful torsos and curvaceous gams roused the ire of the postoffice department and barred Esquire from the mails. Now just in the interstices of science, justice or maybe curiosity the gang this morning took up the Varga gal. They looked her over for the full twelve months and boys she really is a knockout. Why with gals like that back in the old United States what reason would there be for any GI to have to explain what he is fighting for over with the buck toothed Japs or the gals of Europe. The gal gazers all took a look and while a few started to pant and whinny most of the lads (the grey-haired ones) just looked and got a sort of far away gleam in their eyes. But the calendars will make fine decorations for a batchelor boudoir.

Chapter 19
THE King poured himself another tumbler of the rich brown liquor. What he'd already had was coursing through his blood like golden sunshine. He felt very fine indeed, mellow and generous, friendly to all the world. He took the tumbler in his hand and sipped the contents around so that the rum gave off a fine appetizing fragrance. "Very good, very good," he massaged his stomach pleasantly. "Just the thing I need."

The chamberlain came in again and whispered something in the king's ear. The king poured himself another drink. "Let 'em wait," he grumbled. "Let everybody wait. I am King. They do nothing until I come. There is no hurry."

The king lifted the glass to his lips, took a long pull. "This is better than a wedding," he said, smiling. "It takes a man to feel inside. Keeps the stomach from being upset. Rum won't hurt nobody. I should drink lots of it. It's good for me."

He sank back in his chair and closed his eyes. A blissful smile lit up his dark face. "I'm tired of being the King," he said lazily. "It's too much work. I sell the kingdom to the highest bidder. Then I can go away on a trip. I'll go to England like Liholiho did. They will receive me at court."

"Sell the kingdom?" cried Laura. "You would betray your people?"

"The kingdom will be sold by next month," the king hiccoughed. "To some foreign nation. Maybe France, or England. Who cares?"

"Impossible!" protested Laura. "You wouldn't do such a thing. You wouldn't dare!"

"I already do it—practically—the king laughed drunkenly. "I send three secret ambassadors tomorrow with full authority to act for me. They drive a good bargain. These islands are worth something. I have plenty of money from now on and can do what I like."

SOMETHING in the king's words convinced Laura. And the scheme was logical. She knew that the Hawaiian Islands would be a valuable possession to any nation. They would make a splendid naval base in the Pacific. The islands would someday be wealthy, prosperous and productive, worth a great deal of money. And Laura knew that such a scheme was typical of the king. He would sell the kingdom without a word to any of his subjects and take the money with an easy conscience.

But she must have proof. She could not go to the House of Nobles and repeat the drunken story and expect to be believed. She turned to the king with a false smile. "Your Majesty is joking, she said. 'What you have told me is only in fun. How can a king sell his kingdom?'"

"I am not joking," he answered vaguely. "My ambassadors will have full power. I give them written document telling them to act for me."

"I would only believe it," Laura Webb stated emphatically. "If I saw a copy."

"I prove it to you!" muttered the king. "You doubt my word! I prove what I say." He got slowly to his feet, swaying a little. He staggered as he crossed the room, and caught at a table for support. Against the opposite wall was a tall teakwood cabinet. This he opened, fumbled around inside and brought out a folded paper. "Here it is," he cried triumphantly. "The very paper I am giving to my ambassadors. Read it. Then you'll believe what I say."

Laura Webb crossed the room swiftly and almost snatched the paper from the king's hand, so eager was she to see what was written there. She unfolded it and saw, in the big flourishing handwriting of the king, the following amazing words:

"Kamehameha, By the Grace of God, of the Hawaiian Islands, King.
"To our trusty and well-beloved ambassadors:

SECRET INSTRUCTIONS.
"These are to command and empower you, on our behalf to treat and negotiate with any King, President or Government or Agent thereof for the purpose of placing our islands under Foreign Protection and Rule under a Governor-general, reserving for ourselves the nominal title of King."

"Done at the Palace, Honolulu, Oahu, Hawaiian Islands, this seventh day of October, A.D. 1850."
(SEAL) —Kamehameha."

When Laura Webb had finished reading she gazed at the king in amazement. The legal instrument which she held in her hands was practically a power of attorney, giving the ambassadors full authority to sell the islands.

"Believe me now?" demanded the king. "You can see — was telling the truth." He turned toward his precious bottle, shut his eyes.

"I believe you," Laura Webb slipped the incriminating paper under her cloak, backed toward the door. At the foot of the stairs she encountered Doctor Webb.

"Laura!" he cried sternly. "What are you doing in the palace?"

"I've been to see the king," she answered quietly. "He has confessed to me that he is planning to sell Hawaii."

Briefly she told him what had happened and then held out the instructions to the ambassadors which she had taken from the king's room. Doctor Webb scanned the paper swiftly and a bleak smile lighted up his face.

"The nobles are assembled in the throne room for the wedding ceremony," he said, half to himself. "When they see this paper they will believe what I have always told them. He put both hands on Laura's shoulders and smiled at her. "My dear," he said softly, "you have saved the kingdom from being sold into slavery. And I believe you have returned to your husband his power and authority."

Youngsville Council Lays Budget Plans

Youngsville, Dec. 7.—The regular meeting of Youngsville Borough Council was held Monday evening in the Borough building. After routine business, the finance committee reported on the 1945 budget. It was decided that a meeting be held next week to revise and make additions to the proposed budget. There was some discussion concerning the disposal of the Observation Post, but this matter was left for further consideration at the next meeting. The borough water committee reported that all delinquent water bills are now paid to date.

The sewer committee reported that an inspection of the sewer disposal plant had been made by a representative from New York state, and that in his report he stated that the Youngsville borough has one of the best operated and managed plants for its size in this section. He also complimented the superintendent on the condition of the plant and on the supervision of the system.

GARDEN CLUB PLANS
The Brokenstraw Garden Club will meet Tuesday evening, December 12th with Mr. and Mrs. James Hamilton for a 6:30 p. m. tureen dinner meeting. Members are asked to bring Christmas greens suitable for table, mantle or any interior decoration and these will be placed on exhibition and judged.

A program is being planned by the men of the club. It is rumored that the men are now practicing for this event and that it will be good.

An exchange of twenty-five cent gifts is to be featured.

ORANGE CIRCLE
The Orange Circle met Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Chappel on East Main street. Mrs. Nelson presided at the business session and led the devotion, reading the Christmas story from Luke. She also was the program leader and some amusing guessing contests and stunts were provided.

Gifts were exchanged and presents brought for pre-school aged kiddies. A two course luncheon was enjoyed.

LOCALS
Mrs. A. G. Shields of Edmunds, Washington is visiting her cousin, Mrs. Peter Beckenbach and Miss Kathryn Agnew.

Miss Kathryn Wilson of Washington, D. C. has returned home after a visit with her father and brother and other relatives in town.

Mrs. Paul Reynolds and daughter Nancy returned Wednesday from Seattle, Washington where they had been spending some time with husband and father Paul Reynolds of the Navy Fleet Postoffice, who is now being transferred to a new station.

Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Briggs entertained at dinner recently in honor of Mrs. A. G. Shields of Edmunds, Washington. Other guests were Mrs. Peter Beckenbach and Miss Kathryn Agnew.

The U. S. Navy is the only one in the world which never has had a mutiny.

Troops on the North African front used up 1,000,000 gallons of gasoline daily at the height of action.

First came the drums, carried by huge, solemn men, naked, save for the black malos bound about their loins. The drums, used in sacred ceremonies since time immemorial, were made of hollowed koa trees, with parchment stretched tight across both ends. They were glossy and polished from much handling. Their voices were deep, resonant, the voices of the ancient forgotten gods.

Kukui-nut torches moved in double column beside the procession, the flames dancing, leaping, swaying, giving off thick, pungent plumes of smoke. The high chiefs followed according to their rank. Kumu led the procession, wearing the long yellow-and-red cloak which had been his warrior grandfather's, the plumed helmet on his head. In his hands he carried a great knotted club, handed down for generations in his family. About his neck swung the necklace of human hair and bone—symbol of the chief or near-royalty. Behind Kumu marched his attendants, men of lesser rank, with short feather cloaks about their shoulders, some with clubs, spears, throwing weapons of polished koa, curved like the boomerang of Australian bushmen.

GIFT PARCELS MUST BE MAILED AT ONCE TO ASSURE DELIVERY BEFORE CHRISTMAS

A statement issued by Postmaster Bell this morning again warns the public that if gift parcels and greeting cards are not mailed at once, they cannot be delivered in time for Christmas. In fact, said the postmaster, no guarantee can be given that shipments for distant states, even if mailed now, will reach their destination by December 25th. Mailings for our neighboring states of New York, Ohio and the eastern portion of Pennsylvania should be dispatched not later than December 9th, and those for western Pennsylvania by the 11th. To send your greetings and gifts so far in advance of the holiday may not seem reasonable, remarked Mr. Bell, but it must be done. The transportation situation is serious. The railroads are taxed to the limit with the necessary traffic incident to the war, which should and will be given preference. To avoid disappointments, mail now and mark gift "DO NOT OPEN UNTIL CHRISTMAS."

It Happened in "Our Town"

Last night, at the Women's Club, the Warren Players did one of the most satisfying jobs in the last four or five years.

"Our Town," as interpreted by them, stood out with a searching realism that etched itself on every mind in the audience. It was, indeed, our town—your town and my town—identifiable with our own community, with our own friends, with our own mores; and most of all, with our own emotions. The power of the Thornton Wilder play lies in the fact that it says clearly and openly what most people are always saying to themselves but never admitting in public. It reaches down through the layers of habit, the veneers of acceptable social attitudes, the protective coating of innocuous words with which we conceal our real thoughts. That this concealment is necessary so that men may live together and endure the disappointments of life, may very well be true. So hard does the varnish become that sometimes it seems to have replaced the true colors of the personality altogether; the meaningless, protective thoughts seem to have displaced and destroyed the real thoughts; so that in all the crises of life, people utter mere platitudes. But that is only a seeming.

"Our Town" brusquely brushes away this superficial crust. When Emily's mother, in the church scene, bitterly complains that it's cruel to send a young girl into marriage, that the whole scheme of things is wrong, she is saying only what most mothers have thought in their hearts at some time. When George, in the moment before the ceremony, turns to his mother in a moment of panic—and Emily turns to her father—they are both portraying a human trait so fundamental that it took thousands of years for a Freud to discover it. The scene at the soda fountain between Emily and George is almost equally perceptive in the truthfulness of its dialogue and its understanding of the adolescent mind.

The third act, with its commentary on people and living, with its acceptance of life as a mere tragic interlude, stirs the emotions profoundly. There is never time to see people as they really are—they are so young, so lovely, Emily gasps—there is never time to see the whole beautiful world. Does anybody EVER see it, she wants to know. "Poets and saints, maybe—some times," is all the Stage Manager can reply.

This is not an attempt to comment on individual qualities of the actors in the play. There were certainly roughnesses in "Our Town"; there were certainly evidences of a lack of finish which is almost inevitable in a home talent show; there were instances of faulty emphasis in the handling of some important moments in the play. Nevertheless, none of these flaws was so noticeable as to seriously damage the play. None of them interrupted the flow of the central idea, or materially diluted the essential mood.

What happened was that the large cast, the director, everyone concerned with "Our Town," got the idea of the play; worked hard to put it across; and did put it across. From the moment the Stage Manager, leaning against a hypothetical lamp-post, or whatever it was supposed to be, announced that "This play is called 'Our Town,'" the audience was inescapably involved in the ebb and flow of the action and emotion—and continued that way right up to the final moment when the gauze curtain was casually drawn to hide the faces of the dead.

A play like "Our Town" not only entertains the audience and provides it with a much-needed emotional outlet. It cannot help but enable—if only for a moment—those who act in it and work on it. The Warren Players would do well to stage fewer of the three-dimensional plays that are intended only to attract a public, and to amuse it; and more of such plays as "Our Town" which are different from the Broadway run of the street, go deeper into human emotions, and provide a fresh aesthetic experience.

In general, we would say, that the more ambitious the play undertaken by Warren Players, the greater the likelihood of success. The more trivial the theme, the less impressive the result is likely to be. Many experienced play-followers held their breath before the show last night. Could the Warren Players do it? They did.

Monument to Pioneer Flyers Unveiled By Shifting Winds

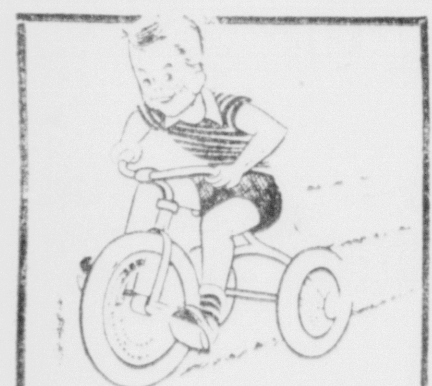

A 1928 flight that failed paved the way for the Army's Air Transport Command's conquest of the North Atlantic air lanes. Here are the remnants of a plane that was forced down on the Greenland ice cap. A reconnaissance photograph led to unraveling of its mystery.

By PETER EDSON

NEA Staff Correspondent
Goose Bay, Labrador, Dec. 8.—Flying on routine reconnaissance and supply mission over the Greenland ice cap, a U. S. Army pilot recently spotted the wreckage of a plane. Thinking that some flyer had been forced down and that here was another job for the Search and Rescue Service of the Air Transport Command, the pilot circled low for a better look and for photographs.

Investigation showed it was an old single-engine Stinson monoplane of late 1920's vintage, such as the Army or no one else had flown for 10 years. That deepened the mystery. And radios showed that no planes or pilots were missing from any nearby base.

Finally, however, news of the wreck got to Lt. Col. B. R. J. "Fish" Hassell, commanding officer of Goose Bay air base in central Labrador. And Fish knew the answer. It was his plane—the old "Greater Rockford" which he and Shorty Cramer had landed on the ice cap near Mt. Davis.

How Jap Drive Perils Chungking

The only place in the global war where the Allies are fighting a losing battle is in the Chinese theatre. Map above shows how Japs, having driven from north and south to divide China in two, have started a northwestern drive from Luichow, possibly aimed at Chungking. A similar push down the Yangtze Valley from Ichang would form a pincers that might eliminate two of the few remaining U. S. air bases and imperil the capital of Free China.

The Balkans Formed Topic Of Address By Rev. Schieb

The discussion of "The Balkans—Powder Keg of Europe" by Rev. S. R. Schieb, pastor of Salem Evangelical church, before the December meeting of the Social Science Section, proved not only of absorbing interest but most timely and enlightening in view of the day to day news of developments in that group of countries as they are liberated from Axis occupation.

Mr. Schieb, who came to America in his teens, was reared in Transylvania and has many relatives there. His observations and interpretations therefore bore the mark of the intimate knowledge and perspective that comes only from living in the Balkans. It has been the destiny of the various Balkan countries to serve as buffer states for more than a thousand years between East and West—Islam and Christianity. In the opinion of Mr. Schieb the possibility of unity of thought and action among the peoples of these unhappy countries are remote, because of almost insurmountable barriers of conflicting loyalties of race, nationality and religion, which beset not only communities but each individual. A young man in the Balkans is forever torn between fidelity to his family tree, or racial heritage, his religious loyalty and the allegiance he owes to the particular national government under whose rule he happens to live. Populations are made up of many groups of diverse language, cultural and racial origins, each proud and loyal to its own. There is the conflict of influence between the Church of Rome, of Byzantium, and the Protestant groups. There are the jealousies and antagonisms between minorities.

It is almost impossible for Americans, with their traditions of freedom and opportunity of life in a republic, to begin to comprehend life where for all practical purposes the king literally owns the country, disposing of the natural resources, and their exploitation to the highest bidders from other nations, which in turn lend their power and influence to maintain the status quo for business reasons in such spheres of influence. Education for the most part is restricted to the children of civil servants, at least above the sixth or seventh grade. It is neither to the interest of the ruling class or to the protecting powers, even though these latter may be democracies, to do anything to disturb the status quo in these countries. British, Russian, German or French interests interfere and dominate political and economic life in the countries that are their satellites and which they exploit.

As to the question of whether these countries would be able to gain more democracy as a result of the promises of the United Nations the speaker was not at all optimistic, since it was unthinkable that the strong powers would relinquish their dominance or disturb the status quo which was to their business and national advantage. Mr. Schieb voices no confidence that the traditional diplomacy of Europe and the rulers who are in the saddle in the Balkans will permit the changes necessary to prevent situations arising in due course which would precipitate a third world war. A fidelity to idealism and unselfishness which is nowhere apparent today would be required to win the peace that America dreams of, he declared. To win the peace will be many times harder than to win the war.

At the brief business session preceding the paper, the following were elected to membership: The Rev. Beecher M. Rutledge, Robert Wiltshill and Archie Hunter. Hosts for the evening were: A. H. Bengston, E. H. Beshlin, Dr. Earl Biddle, S. D. Blackman, H. L. Blair and Dr. E. S. Briggs.

The paper for January 6th will be: "Our Neighbors, the Jews," by the Rev. Beecher M. Rutledge, pastor of Trinity Memorial church.

SOLDIER LOSES WALLET

An army sergeant who was given a lift by a Warren man enroute east to his home in Connecticut discovered yesterday when he arrived at Johnsonburg that he had lost his wallet and believes that it may have dropped in the automobile of the local motorist. It contained identification cards and a sum of money. He is hoping that it was recovered by the Warren man and will be returned to him. He first missed the pocketbook when he visited a Warren restaurant before proceeding east after he had "hitched" a ride with a local business man.

Well Doing 100 Barrels Hit By Spangler

Titusville, Dec. 8.—C. L. Spangler of Pleasantville Route 1, said last night he had completed a well on his lease between the borough and Jerusalem Corners that will make from 75 to 100 barrels a day. The property is owned by his brother, A. L. Spangler, also of Pleasantville, Route 1.

This is the third well C. L. Spangler has drilled. The first one was finished on Dec. 7, 1941, the day Pearl Harbor was attacked, and the second last August, Nos. 1 and 2 are on property he owns in fee. No. 1 is making 10 barrels a day after three years and is not being pumped full time. Mr. Spangler says he has taken about nine thousand barrels from this well. No. 2 is making 23 barrels a day, being pumped eight hours.

Nos. 2 and 3 are about 250 feet apart and 700 feet from No. 1. Mr. Spangler is of the opinion he has struck a pool of oil that was never before tapped, although both properties are in proven territory.

Mr. Spangler says his new well is pumping about four barrels an hour and he does not intend shooting it immediately.

C. C. Hogg of Pleasantville has acquired the adjoining Carnahan property and is putting up two rigs. Mr. Spangler plans to drill more wells as soon as possible. No. 3 was drilled by contract, the work being done at night because the men were engaged elsewhere in the daytime.

All of the wells are first sand and average about 650 feet deep.

Boys Missing Thought Going To Metropolis

The families of the boys, the police a description of the boys, etc., and this information was placed on the police teletype and a telegram was also sent to the New York police department. The boys may have their tour rudely interrupted by state police along the route.

The boys are Nick Sirianni, 720 Fifth avenue, west, and William Brown, 111 Center street. The Sirianni boy is 17, 6 feet two inches in height, weighs 175 pounds and was wearing a knee length grey coat, gabardine trousers. He has dark hair and eyes and his hair is cut short. The Brown lad is also 17, weighs 150 pounds and is five feet and 10 inches in height, has dark hair and eyes and has a GI haircut. He wears a tan jacket, blue trousers and wore heavy work shoes.

The boys have expressed an ambition to visit New York and perhaps find some work there hence it is thought they are endeavoring to reach the big city.

Gas Furnace Blast Sings Woman's Hair

Mrs. Mina Clendenning, 211 Russell street had a narrow escape from most serious injury yesterday afternoon about 4 o'clock when she went to the basement of her home to light the furnace. She rolled up a piece of paper and lighting it inserted it into the furnace. An explosion followed as the furnace was filled with gas. Mrs. Clendenning was blown back some distance and her hair was burned close to her scalp about her face. Her forehead was also badly burned and she suffered some from shock.

Employees of the gas company serving the home had replaced the meter in the home during the day and all fires had been turned off during the time the work was in progress. Following the installation the men went around the home lighting fires but evidently overlooked lighting the pilot light in the furnace. This allowed the furnace to become filled with gas and when Mrs. Clendenning placed the paper in the furnace the blast followed.

The earliest eyewitness account of a Mississippi River flood was that of the Spaniard Garcilaso de la Vega in 1543.

Trailer - Trucks Carrying Gas Real Menace

Fire Chief Charles Albaugh is making a thorough investigation of the accident in which a leaking gasoline truck figured this week on Pennsylvania avenue, east. Chief Albaugh states that the big trailer trucks carrying gasoline are a real fire menace to the city and that there is not care enough shown in the way they are driven. He complains that some of the big trucks wheel along during the night at unsafe speeds and should they wreck a catastrophe might take place.

The accident this week took place while the driver of the truck was in one of the lunch wagons on the East Side and the truck was parked along the curb. A seam on the tanker sprung a leak and in about three-quarters of an hour 900 gallons of gasoline was put on the pavement. The janitor of the Lacy School discovered the leak, according to the chief's report, and turned in the alarm for police and firemen. This is not in accord with the previous reports given out.

"Should a fire have started from this gasoline there is no telling what might have happened," said the Fire Chief of it as several houses might have been consumed and some people burned or killed. I am endeavoring to ascertain if there is a city ordinance covering this matter but the Burgess was out of town yesterday. I feel that if there is not such an ordinance that one should be passed and also one holding the tank trucks down to 25 miles per hour speed in passing through the city."

About two years ago an agitation was started for an ordinance governing the parking of gasoline trucks in the city and also covering the speed of such trucks. At the time no action was taken and whether or not there is such an ordinance now on the borough statute books is not known but it is not believed there is such an ordinance.

The Book Of A Thousand Tongues

Thus was the Bible characterized by War Correspondent Col. Frederick Palmer, who for about 30 years saw much of the seamy side of life all over the world, but he saw also what the Bible had done for the savage and semi-civilized people of many lands.

But the Bible, or some parts of it, has actually been translated into 1062 languages. What books, if any, have attained one tenth that number?

Why is the changeless Bible, which is the oldest book that most of us know anything about, in such demand? Because the Bible is always news. Anything is news which is of interest to a majority of the people. It is the most widely known book in the world.

The Bible is news, because it is playing so large a part in the lives of our fighting men. But there is a far deeper sense in which the Bible is news. The reason it has surpassed all other books in durability, in translation, in publication, in circulation, in popularity, is because it contains the best news that ever broke upon a waiting world—the news that "God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish but have everlasting life."

"Oh P give me that Book" said a good man, "At any price give me the Book of God."

It has stood the test of twenty centuries and is to last to the end of the world. Are you reading it? "Prepare to meet thy God," and do it now. Join the world-wide circle of readers who will, between this Thanksgiving and Christmas, read the Scripture passages assigned for each day.

Jamestown Red And Green Invades Dragon Set - Up

Warren Five Faces Do-or-Die Battle Against Taft Quintet Tonight On Beaty Hardwood

With a total of two wins so far this season, Joe Massa's green but prospective Dragons hit their toughest opposition so far this season tonight, when they stack up against Roland H. Taft's Red and Green crew from the Empire State city of Jamestown.

Sweeping forth with a round total of 100 points in their first two encounters, although the showing was anything but spectacular in the St. Marys game, the Dragon quintet has its toughest assignment tonight on the Beaty court when they attempt to crack the Jamestown machine. The Red and Green five swamped the Corry Beavers in their first tilt of the year Tuesday night by a 39-13 margin, and is in full swing for their usual invasion of the local regime.

Tonight's contest should at least prove whether the Warren combine has any reasonable possibilities of producing a championship aggregation. Their previous exhibitions have not been remarkable, but they have executed some very fine maneuvers which may prove to be the deciding factor in the Beaty hardwood battle this evening. The Massa crew has one added advantage in the annual Warren-Jamestown affair, that of Ave Basketball Joe Scallie, the most highly regarded shot in the history of Warren basketball. Scallie maintains the finest shooting average of any hoopster who has ever performed in the Blue and White color brigade. With 22 markers in the first engagement and 24 in the Dutch city affair last Tuesday, Scallie rebounds as one of the top factors in the outcome of the game tonight. Also adding to the Massa-coached crew's scoring punch is little Bobby Hammerbeck, who racked up four field goals and a free throw in the St. Marys game. Veteran of two campaigns with the high school and now in his third year, Hammerbeck rates as one of the smartest ball players on the crew this season.

As for the defense which the Dragons will spring tonight, doubt is prevalent whether or not they will use the new zone set-up or the man-for-man method is to be decided. Coach Joe Massa will probably use the man-for-man in an effort to stop the main scoring threat of the Taft five, Royce "Splinter" Newell, 6'8" center. Newell is playing his second year of varsity basketball for the Red and Green quint and is one of the most dangerous men on the team, for his added height and ability to manipulate under the basket. Newell collected 10 points in the Jamestown-Corry fray, although he played only a small part of the game. Rounding out the rest of the starting five for the Taftmen will be Forwards Rus Miloto and Bob Black and Guards Jim Minium and Billy Dykeman. This combination is equal to the Dragon five with the exception that Newell is the only letterman on the opposing crew, while the Warren bunch has three vets.

Coach Massa deserves a host of approval from the Dragon fans for his work with this year's crew. Stepping into the shoes of Heinie Kolpien as his first season at the helm of the Warren cage set-up, Massa was faced with a group of green and inexperienced men and is doing an exceptional job of developing the boys into a well-ordinated squad. Joe had only three men with which to form the skeleton of his team and was forced to substitute several players who had little experience in high school ball. Nevertheless, Warren should and will have a winning team, and with several games for added experience, those boys will dominate the league competition.

Preceding the main battle, which starts promptly at 8:30 p. m., will be featured the Second team squads of the respective schools. This exhibition should be well worthwhile to attend, as both crews have one win to their credit. The second team contest will start at 7:30.

Probable starting lineup:

| Warren | Jamestown |
|----------------|-----------|

| Hammerbeck, f. | Black |
| Hammerbeck, f. | Newell |
| Hammerbeck, f. | Minium |

That Don Whitmire, Navy's husky All-American tackle, has two more football seasons at Annapolis. And weighs well over 200 pounds? That Army may have some trouble making up its football schedule for the next few years because of high scoring Glenn Davis and Felix "Doc" Blanchard, hard-hitting fullback. Both All-American backs have three more seasons ahead?

That seven states are represented on the AP 1944 All-American football team. Alabama, California, Ohio, and Texas each have two players; the others hail from Delaware, Oklahoma, and South Carolina.

That Hamilton J. Nichols, Jr., Rice's All-American guard, is in the Navy engineering program at the Houston, Texas, school?

That George "Barney" Moore, Army's end who made the All-American third team, is regarded as one of the coming West Point greats?

That Joe Setevage, Corry High School's basketball coach, was a member of Buffalo's famous Duguesne football team a few years back, quarterbacking the Duke's undefeated team?

Also quarterbacked the 1943 Brooklyn Dodgers? That Bobby Brownell, captain of last year's Jamestown Red and Green courtiers, is stationed at Sampson?

That Vic Daniloff, standout performer of Farrell's great 1942-3 cage team, who overcame the handicap of infantile paralysis, is being counted on as the spark plug of the Penn State quint this season?

That this week's Time Mag has a very interesting article on the great 1944 Army football crew?

That Charles Magnum, of Erie Academy, and James Mahoney, Erie Cathedral Prep, made the All-State football team, Magnum as a guard and Mahoney as a tackle?

That thirty members of the Elk Club are entered in the annual three-cushion billiard tournament at the Club? That 197 hunters lost their lives during the hunting season in Michigan and Wisconsin?

Post-War Bill Highlights Minor Meeting

By JOE REICHLER

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 8 (P)—Postwar planning, with special emphasis on the encouragement of schoolboy baseball, promised to highlight today's activities as the minors would up their 43rd Annual Convention, after adopting seven of 13 proposed amendments yesterday.

A report of the Major-Minor Committee on postwar planning, formed last February at the request of the late Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis, will come up for action.

The committee recommended appointment of touring talent teams to spread the diamond gospel and circulation of rule books and movies on the game's fundamentals.

A $500 fine on clubs signing boys still eligible for high school ball was also recommended.

Among other ideas were the formation of clinics for improvement of umpiring, elimination of payment of bonuses to free agents with substitution of a payment of ten per cent of the sales price to players assigned to a higher club, establishment of a promotional department with a full time director, and redefining the playing rules.

Also coming up was a resolution of J. Kemp Bartlett, secretary of Baltimore's International League club, that a committee be formed to meet with football owners to erase overlapping schedules of the two sports.

Most important of the amendments adopted, all of which must be concurred in by the major leagues, dealt with the draft and territorial problems.

The agreement on $10,000 for a class AA player, an increase of only 33 1/2 per cent instead of the original 100 per cent, was felt by observers to be a conciliatory gesture to the majors. However, passing of an amendment giving the minors the right to buy the franchise of any invading major league club clearly stated the minor leagues' intention to protect their territory.

Averages in the Moose Men's Bowling League for the first ten weeks of the loop have been compiled with Joe Fielding, of the Morrell team, leading the field with a high 182 total.

Struthers and Blomquists Cop Victories In the Opening Of Y. M. C. A. Warm-Up Round

The two opening encounters in the 1944-45 Y. M. C. A. Basketball League got under way last night on the Y court with the Blomquist scoring a 31-22 win over the Baker crew and the National Forge five dropping their encounter to the Struthers Wells aggregation.

In the preliminary battle between Blomquists and Bakers, young Don Nelson collected eight markers. Nelson sparked the winners in a very aggressive floor game, dropping in four field goals. For the Baker quint, McGarry paced the boys in the tallying department with six points.

In the main game, which featured the two clubs rated as the strongest in the loop, Struthers put on a last half scoring spree which resulted in a 36-24 triumph over the Forge crew. The Forge five held a 3-3 margin at the ending of the first quarter, but dropped their lead to the sharpshooting Struthers bunch, and at half time trailed by a 12-10 edge.

In the second half, the Swanson-coached boys let loose with a number of accurate tries from mid-court and marked up 11 points in the third stanza to raise their lead to 23-15. After an unsuccessful attempt to retain their lead in the final quarter, the Forge quintet retired on the bottom end of the final count.

Bobby Chase and Allie Lord, a couple of old-timers, held the tally sheet intact for the Warren group by each adding ten points to the books. For the losing Forgers, Dick Harris and Freddie Aumer totaled 15 points between them, Harris dropping in four field goals and Aumer making good three goals and one free throw.

Support of Sixth War Loan Drive Urged By TB Official

Tribute to the medical branches of the armed forces was paid today by H. M. Miller, president of the Warren County Tuberculosis Society, who urged support of the Sixth War Loan Drive "in order that our boys may be granted every safeguard against the ravages of war."

"On the third anniversary of Pearl Harbor, each one of us, I am sure, has resolved that it shall not happen again," he said in a statement today. "We have resolved, too, to embark with renewed effort upon the tasks which we, as individuals, have to perform to speed us to the day of final victory."

"Whatever the tasks for which we are responsible, there is an additional obligation upon us all, one that calls for no extra physical effort. It is the obligation to buy War Bonds. Our government needs the money to keep our boys supplied with the finest equipment modern science can devise.

"On the home front one of our problems is to control tuberculosis. Through an educational program that keeps pace with the latest findings of medical research the Tuberculosis Society has provided information on the prevention and control of tuberculosis.

"Tuberculosis takes one life every nine minutes in the nation and
